19 TO 26 JULY 2017 | ASTRONOMER IN RESIDENCE

Segera is excited to welcome Patrick 'Pat' Seitzer as its first Astronomer in Residence, from 19th to 26th July 2017, coinciding with the spectacular New Moon on 23rd July. Pat is a Research Professor of Astronomy at the University of Michigan and for the last 10 years he has shared his enthusiasm for the stars under the very dark skies of the African wilderness. Because Kenya is on the equator, you can see celestial objects in both the northern and southern skies, creating a very special astronomical experience. Located in the heart of Kenya, the Laikipia Plateau is renowned for its huge open skies and incredible star gazing opportunities. Join Pat on a cosmic safari of Segera, enjoying the stories and history of the stars, letting the galaxy tell us about the past and future of the universe and our relationship with it. You will never look at a night sky in the same way again.

Join acclaimed conservationist and philanthropist Jochen Zeitz and extraordinary Chief Warden Emmanuel de Merode, to explore Virunga National Park; the UNESCO World Heritage Site in the eastern Democratic Republic of Congo, on the border of Uganda and Rwanda. Virunga – the subject of last year's Oscar-nominated documentary – is Africa's oldest national park and is also the continent's most biologically diverse protected area. The park's 3,000 square miles include forests, savannahs, lava plains, swamps, erosion valleys, active volcanoes, and the glaciated peaks of the Rwenzori mountains. Virunga is also home to about a quarter of the world's critically endangered mountain gorillas. The park's two other Great Ape species, eastern lowland Grauer's gorillas and chimpanzees, make Virunga the only park in the world to host three taxa of Great Apes. Another prominent inhabitant of the park is the Okapi, an endangered species, along with large colonies of hippopotamus, forest and savannah elephants, lion, and numerous rare bird species. Enjoy this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to explore Virunga with the park's own extraordinary chief warden and the endangered gorilla's that he has dedicated his life to protecting.
