About Warren

Warren's early years as a wildlife documentary cameraman, was spent in the Masai Mara National Reserve, where he and his family lived in a tented camp on the banks of the Mara River. It was here that he had the privilege of working amongst Africa's Big Cats, the Great Wildebeest Migration, and the Masai communities that live there. Warren went on to film for major documentary series such as BBC's Big Cat Diary, Big Cat Week and Big Cat Live as one of the principal cameramen. In addition Warren has filmed for other well known documentaries for the BBC such as Human Planet, Truth about Lions, Secret Life of Elephants and Planet Earth Live.

On Safari with Warren

Warren began running Big Cat film & Photographic Safaris in the Masai Mara as a guide and camera instructor in 2002. On his safaris he encourages people to learn how to use their own DSLR stills and video cameras, and with his experience as a wildlife cameraman, he is able to expertly maneuver and position car and camera to get the best lighting and composition, guaranteeing first class images. He also acts as a specialist Big Cat guide with the unique ability to understand and interpret big cat behaviour. Warren prides himself in being able to get his clients, "UP CLOSE AND PERSONAL", to the big cats allowing them to experience both a sense of awe and intimacy with these great predators.
