

VENTURE INTO
Rwanda

15 – 20 MARCH 2020 (FAM)

Situated at the heart of the Albertine Rift, Rwanda is one of Africa's most biodiverse regions and a haven of rainforest endemism. The undulating hills and mountains of the rainforest on the western peaks give way to wetland and savannah in the east.

Rwanda's most celebrated wild mammal is the magnificent mountain gorilla found in the Virunga Massif, amongst a host of other rainforest species. However, less known is the incredible scenery and thriving wildlife of Akagera National Park, where the likes of lion, leopard and buffalo roam.

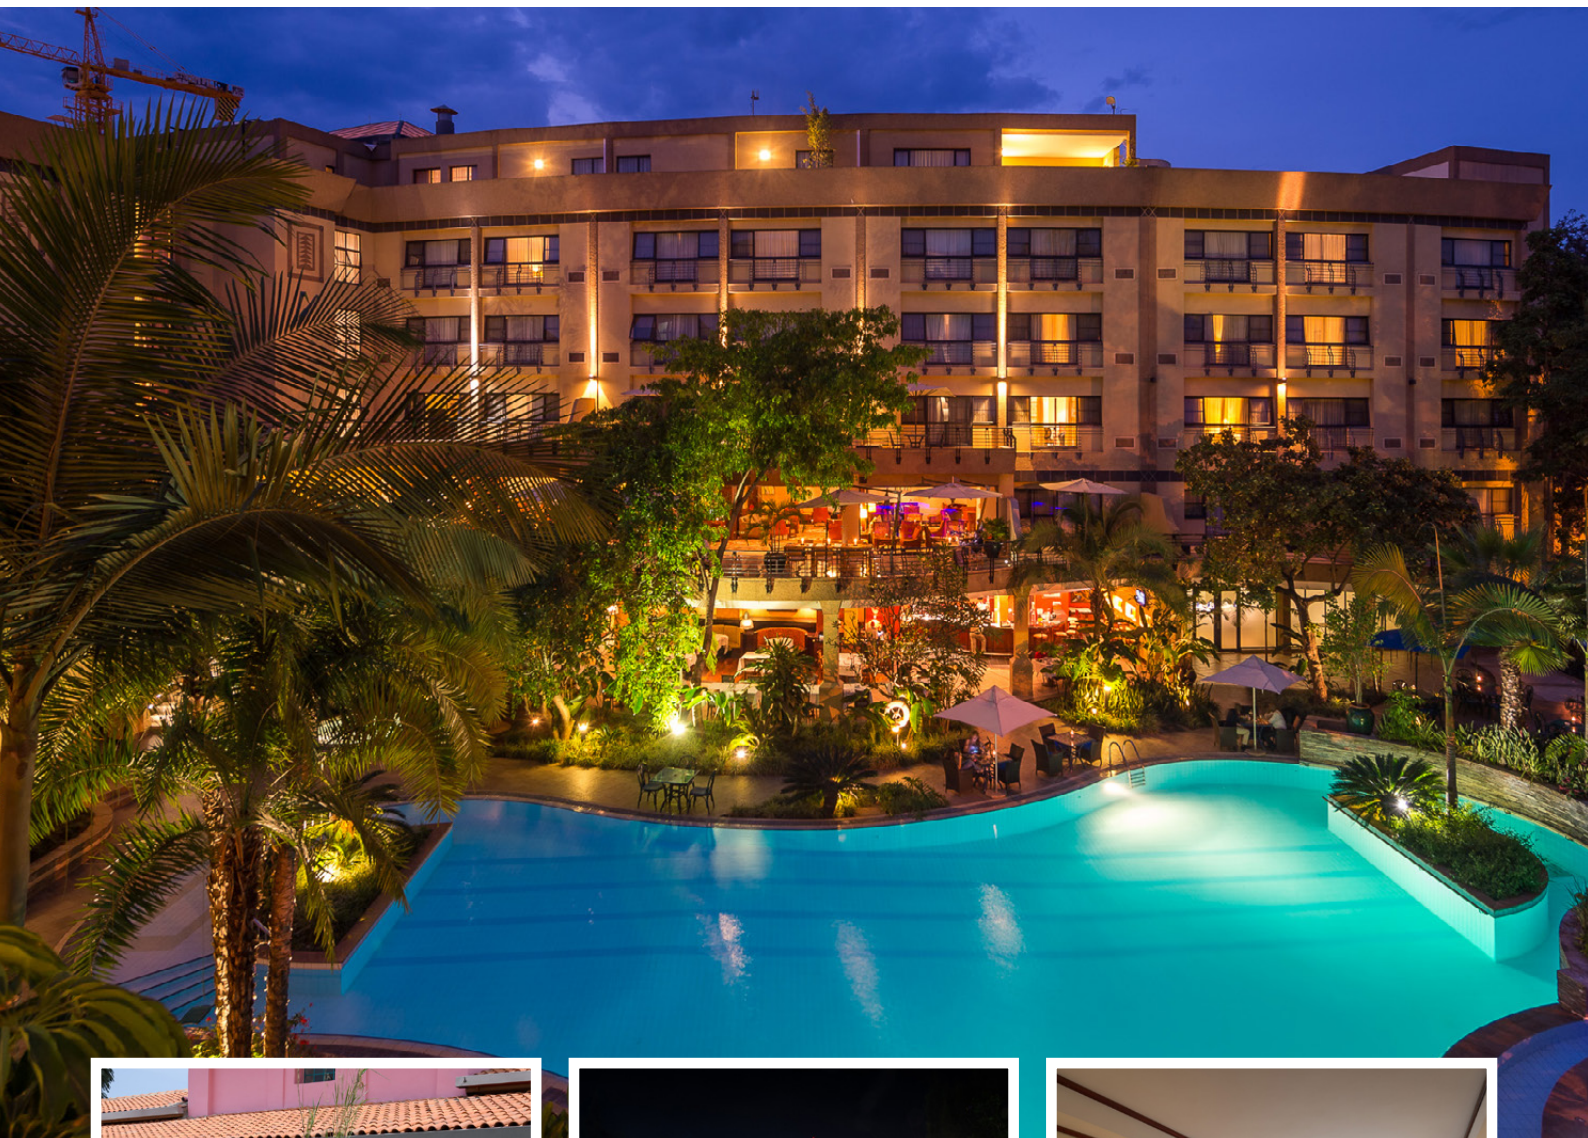

A close-up, high-contrast photograph of a gorilla's face, showing its eyes, nose, and mouth in detail. The gorilla's fur is dark and textured, and its eyes are a striking yellowish-brown color. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the contours of its face.
