

ZIMBABWE • ZAMBIA • MALAWI

Mixed herd of impala and eland on a 'green season' game drive (Hwange National Park, Zimbabwe)

WHY ZIMBABWE, ZAMBIA OR MALAWI

WHY ZIMBABWE AND ZAMBIA

Zimbabwe and Zambia share an unbroken border along the Zambezi River of some 800 km (500 miles). This includes the magnificent Victoria Falls, Lake Kariba and the protected areas of the Lower Zambezi, as well as a number of cultures and ethnic groups. In short, the two have a lot in common.

The most obvious shared asset is the World Heritage Site of Victoria Falls, one of the world's Seven Natural Wonders and a scenic, thrilling addition to any safari in the region. Regardless of the time of year or level of the water pouring over the edge of the Falls, the sight is breathtaking.

The two countries have something else in common: the existence of vast and pristine protected areas of wooded savannah, home to large and varied wildlife populations including some of Africa's most exciting species and ecosystems. In Zambia, our camps are found in Kafue National Park, and in Zimbabwe in Hwange National Park, both easily accessible from Victoria Falls and frequent combinations with that unique destination. Further east is the Lower Zambezi transfrontier protected area and on the Zimbabwean side, one of Africa's iconic wilderness and wildlife destinations, Mana Pools National Park.

WHY MALAWI

This tiny south-central African country, called "the warm heart of Africa," is not usually associated with the safari circuit of either east or southern Africa and this is exactly its appeal. Charming, hospitable people, breadth of altitude and scenery, pockets of amazing diversity and some truly unique destinations are all features of this little-known country.

Its geography is sculpted by the Great Rift Valley: towering mountains, pristine plateaus, lush lowland forests, fertile valley floors, golden sandy beaches and an enormous ocean-like lake are all hallmarks of this geological phenomenon. At its lowest point, Malawi is only 35 m (114 ft.) above sea level, while Mount Mulanje rears no less than 3 000 m (9 800 ft.) high. Between these extremes, the country harbours everything from elephant and cichlid fish to orchids, and is one of the best places in Africa for travellers to interact with the local people or visit a rural community in an atmosphere totally devoid of expectation or affectation.

Must-see destinations include the spectacular Nyika Plateau in the far north, the unique Lake Malawi and Liwonde National Park, the gem in Malawi's game viewing crown.

Why Travel with Wilderness Safaris?

Today we have so much choice when it comes to travelling, it's often difficult to make a decision on the country in which to travel, let alone deciding with whom to travel. Wilderness Safaris makes the choice easy. Not only do we have camps and lodges in nine countries across Africa, but we have been based in Malawi and Zimbabwe for some 20 years, and Zambia for 14. We love the remoteness, timelessness and diversity of the areas we operate in here and believe we offer our guests access to the region's best wilderness and wildlife areas.

- Wilderness Safaris offers our guests exclusive access to more than 3 million hectares (8 million acres) of Africa's best wildlife areas. This equates to 3 000 hectares (8 000 acres) of private land per guest, creating a unique sense of seclusion, comfort, privacy and space. Experiences in our private concessions far exceed those in public access national parks.
- Our areas cover many habitats, encompassing parts of nine of Africa's eleven biomes, thus allowing for incredibly diverse and all-round experiences, whether in the savannah, the rainforest, the desert or the ocean.
- Whether travelling as a couple, a family or on your own and in order to satisfy individual needs and personalities, our properties range from high-end luxury to more affordable options.
- Our dedicated team with 30 years' experience of designing perfect safaris works hand in hand with your travel agent – an Africa specialist in their own right – to design a journey that suits your budget and bucket list.
- Our own bush airline – Wilderness Air – means that we can create a seamless journey that allows you to move from one place to the next on your itinerary without hassles.
- We offer complete, tailor-made services throughout southern Africa including logistics, sightseeing and accommodation in our camps as well as an extensive list of other accommodation and of course our own set-departure guided journeys known as Explorations.
- We operate a touring and transfers business – Wilderness Touring – in the tourism hubs of Cape Town (South Africa), Victoria Falls (Zimbabwe), Livingstone (Zambia) and Windhoek (Namibia).

At Wilderness Safaris, we create journeys, not holidays. A journey is an immersive experience, one that changes how you view the world in general and the wild places of Africa in particular.

Why we do what we do

- The environment is at the heart of our beliefs and values. Our quest is to come to understand the wilderness better, to respect it, to care for it and to share it with our guests.
- We are serious about what we do and believe fully in our vision of contributing meaningfully to African conservation.
- Our vision is encapsulated by “the 4Cs,” a concept that suggests that our organisation aims to be truly sustainable by committing to the four dimensions of Commerce, Conservation, Community, and Culture:
 - Commerce deals with our ecotourism offerings and products and is perhaps the most critical element to sustainability in the modern world.
 - Conservation is divided into Environmental Management Systems i.e., building and managing our camps in the most eco-friendly way possible, and Biodiversity Conservation i.e., the understanding, management and protection of the wildlife and ecosystems with which we are involved.
 - Community is all about the people at the heart of our business: Internal Community – our staff across all our regions, and External Community – comprising the rural communities that either own the land on which we operate or live adjacent to these areas.
 - Culture is a multifaceted element that governs respect for the culture of all employees as well as the remote rural communities surrounding the conservation areas.
- Our non-profit trusts – the Wilderness Wildlife Trust and Children in the Wilderness – help us drive this vision. The Wilderness Wildlife Trust funds projects addressing the needs of existing wildlife populations, seeks solutions to save threatened species and provides education and training for local communities. Children in the Wilderness is an environmental and life skills educational programme that focuses on the next generation of rural decision makers – the children of Africa.

Our Camps and Explorations

In Zimbabwe, Zambia and Malawi, our camps are typically small, intimate safari bases in superb locations, ranging in size from just four units (with a total of eight beds) to 12. Here we want our guests to be immersed in Africa: while lying in bed to hear the roar of the lion, the grunting of hippo, the sigh of the wind.

In order to fulfil individual needs, we have several categories of accommodation, as explained at right.

Of paramount importance to us is that our camps have as little impact on the environment as possible. This is relevant not only during the building process, but also during day-to-day operating and takes into account all elements of environmental impact, from the visual and aural implications, to effects on soil, the water table, vegetation, game movement, and so on.

All of our camps undergo rigorous in-house and independent environmental impact assessments (EIAs) prior to construction. Wherever possible, renewable energy for our electricity and water heating requirements is provided through photovoltaic solar arrays. Waste water treatment, recycling and fuel storage, as well as procurement of all goods and services, are also carefully considered. Each camp undergoes comprehensive biannual audits, making them some of the most sustainable and responsible in Africa. We believe that – more than just comfort and life-changing experiences – our camps provide the luxury of space and a clean conscience.

Our Premier camps comprise our most elegant and stylised accommodation. These camps combine exclusive luxury and superbly designed architecture with the warm comforts of home and personal service.

Between Camps

From the moment you arrive in Africa, to your departure and every point in between, Wilderness Safaris people are ready and waiting for you.

We want to ensure as seamless and smooth an experience as possible whether in Zimbabwe, Zambia or Malawi. This first takes the form of a “meet and greet” at the airport of arrival (usually Victoria Falls, Livingstone, Lusaka, Lilongwe or Blantyre) where a representative of Wilderness Safaris welcomes and briefs you, before taking you through to your next flight or transfer.

Aside from being the site of one of the Seven Natural Wonders of the World, Victoria Falls, and the two towns on the Zambian and Zimbabwean sides of the river (Livingstone and Victoria Falls respectively), are our operational bases for these two countries and the hub for Wilderness Air, our own “bush airline.”

In these two countries, Wilderness Air is a key element of your safari experience, flying you between remote bush camps and then back to international airports for onward connections. Victoria Falls is also home to Wilderness Touring, our touring and transfer business that enhances any visit to the area whether sightseeing, shopping or enjoying cultural activities.

In Malawi, Lilongwe is our national hub. Here we run a luxurious home-from-home guesthouse (Heuglin’s), a touring and transfer service and also have a close relationship with a local aircraft charter business for flights to our camps.

Cradled between two great African rivers – the myth-shrouded, perennial Zambezi and the “great grey green greasy” seasonal Limpopo – Zimbabwe is blessed with bountiful natural resources.

Between these two majestic watercourses lies a wealth of scenic landscapes, remnants of ancient civilisations and incredible wildlife. Spectacular granite landscapes rise up out of miombo woodland and mopane savannah in the south-west and the central plateau has extensive moist grasslands and broad-leaved woodland. To the south-east lie the dry woodlands and bushveld of the lowveld, while in the north-west corner, the Zambezi River pours over the world-famous Victoria Falls.

Below the Falls, the Zambezi zigzags through the Batoka Gorges before carving a giant arc around the north of the country, great cliffs sliding down into riverine forest and wide floodplains. The river flows into Lake Kariba and then onward through the hot low-lying Zambezi Valley and the game-rich World Heritage Site of Mana Pools National Park.

Along the Botswana border, the easternmost tongues of the Kalahari sands creep into the country and mix with the teak forests of the interior. Here Zimbabwe’s largest national park, Hwange, is home to some of southern Africa’s last great elephant, buffalo and sable herds.

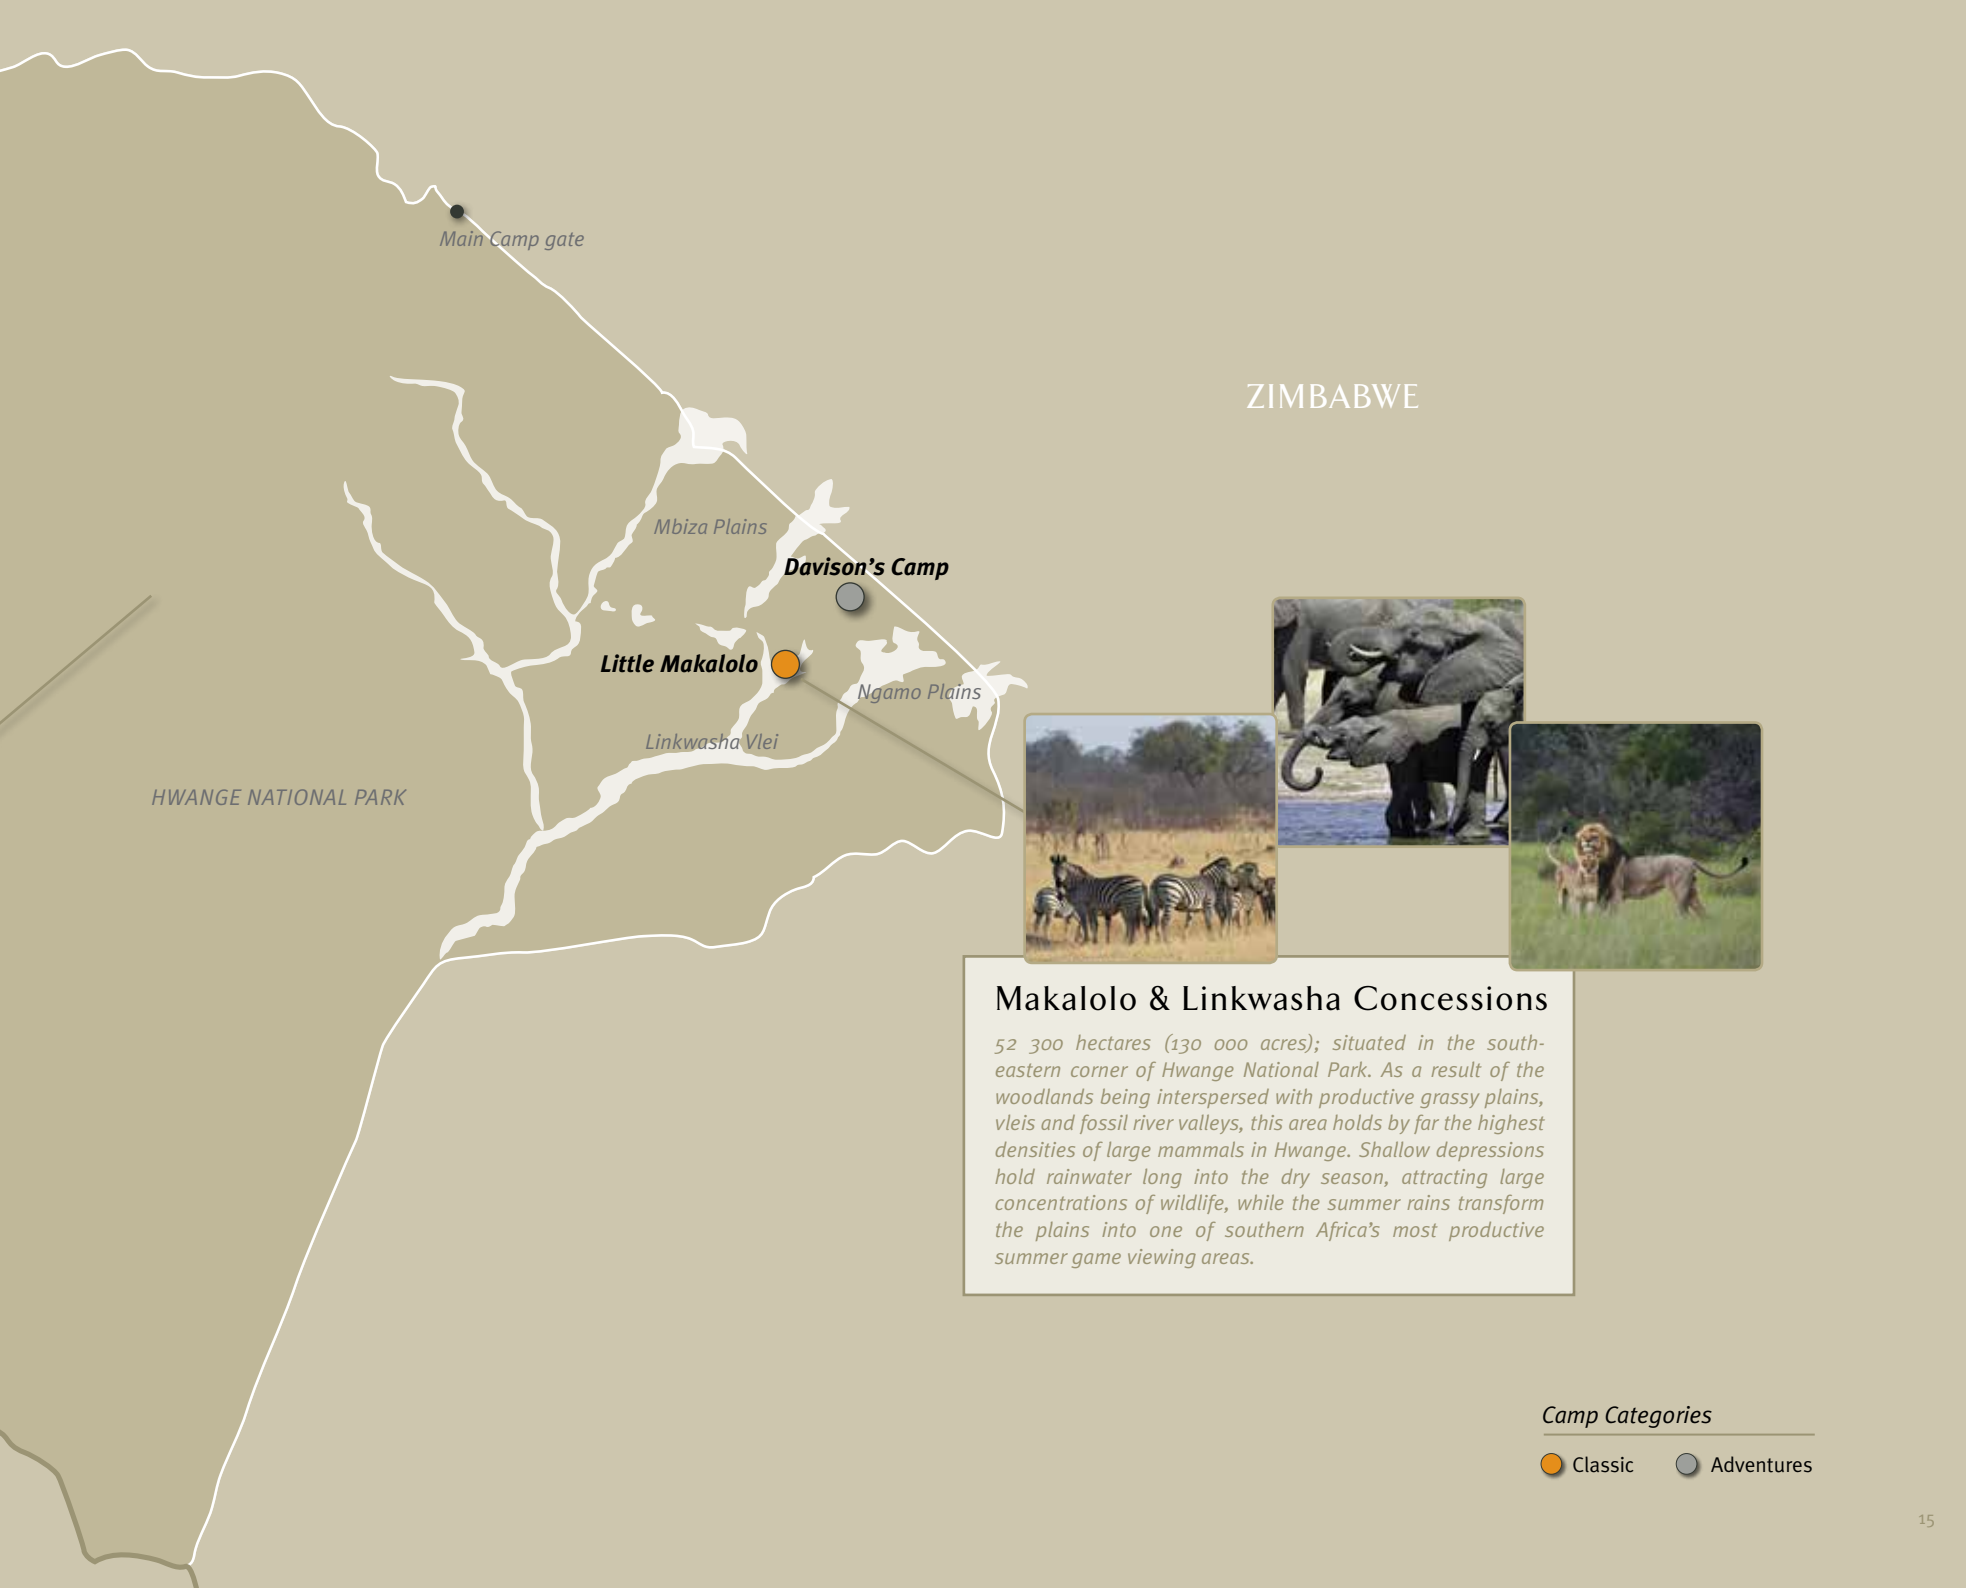

CAMPS IN ZIMBABWE – HWANGE

Hwange National Park

1.4 million hectares (3.4 million acres); Zimbabwe's largest and most popular national park. Landscapes range from the rugged, hilly country of the north to vast swathes of broad-leaved woodland across the centre, and the fossil river valleys, vleis and plains in the south-east. The sandy soils of the Kalahari dominate in the south-west, resulting in a unique meeting of two ecosystems and their associated fauna – oryx (an arid savannah species) being found side by side with species like sable (more at home in moist woodland).

52 300 hectares (130 000 acres); situated in the south-eastern corner of Hwange National Park. As a result of the woodlands being interspersed with productive grassy plains, vleis and fossil river valleys, this area holds by far the highest densities of large mammals in Hwange. Shallow depressions hold rainwater long into the dry season, attracting large concentrations of wildlife, while the summer rains transform the plains into one of southern Africa's most productive summer game viewing areas.

Little Makalolo

Intimate and exclusive, Little Makalolo is situated in the remote south-east of Hwange, looking out at a waterhole to which animals are drawn in their numbers in the dry season. A false mopane tree in the centre of the camp shades a dining and living area, with a plunge pool in which to cool off, and an open area for convivial evening fireside tales. During siesta hours, you can enjoy outstanding wildlife viewing at the log pile hide that overlooks the waterhole in front of camp.

Highlights

Little Makalolo is in one of Hwange's best game viewing areas, where a number of shallow pans in the vicinity draw a constant parade of elephant (estimated at 30 000 in the Park), buffalo, southern giraffe and Burchell's zebra, creating one of the densest concentrations of game in Africa. Sable, roan and eland are special here, with lion, leopard, wild dog and cheetah present as apex predators.

Davison's Camp

Davison's Camp is beautifully situated in the private Linkwasha Concession, in the south-eastern section of Hwange National Park. Named after the founder of Hwange National Park and its first warden, Ted Davison, it is tastefully hidden beneath a grove of false mopane trees. Both the guest tents and the main area – comprising a lounge, dining room and plunge pool – look out at a much-frequented waterhole and open plain.

Highlights

In the summer, wildlife viewing is excellent, with buffalo, giraffe, sable, wildebeest, zebra and eland found in abundance on the open plains. In winter, the waterholes, or pans, are magnets for elephant, with hundreds coming down to drink at each one. Lion, leopard, spotted hyaena, common waterbuck and roan are all found on this private concession.

Named for Hwange's first warden and ideally positioned overlooking a productive waterhole.

Ruckomechi Camp

Ruckomechi Camp lies on the banks of the Zambezi with a superb view of the mountains across the river in Zambia, and is set amongst broad-canopied ana trees that are loved by elephants for their rich nutritious seeds. The central dining, bar, library and lounge areas face the escarpment, along with an infinity pool and hammocks, and an inviting, cushion-strewn stargazing deck. Ruckomechi boasts a favourite amongst guests: its outdoor 'bath-with-a-view' in a secluded, scenic spot.

Highlights

Both the river and the pools for which the Mana Pools National Park is named hold water year-round, drawing all manner of wildlife and waterfowl, especially during the dry season. Below the canopy of giant trees, large numbers of elephant mingle with buffalo, impala, waterbuck, eland, kudu and the more secretive nyala. Lion frequent the floodplains and adjacent woodland, while leopard stalk the thickets and cheetah and the endangered wild dog are occasionally seen.

A sparkling broad river, shady trees, purple-hued mountains – and an elephant or two: this is the view from Ruckomechi.

Zambia retains the quintessence of Africa: vast, undisturbed landscapes, superb wildlife and cultural encounters in one of the continent's least travelled and thus most rewarding wilderness destinations.

Landlocked in south-central Africa, the majority of the country straddles a central plateau 3 000 m above sea level resulting in a mild, pleasant climate. To the east, the altitude falls away to the hot and humid river valleys of the Luangwa and Zambezi. To the north-west lie the headwaters of the Kafue and Zambezi, while in the north-east Lake Tanganyika is shared with Tanzania and the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Kafue National Park epitomises the remote, wild and diverse characteristics of the Zambian wilderness. Its Busanga Plains are perhaps the prime wildlife viewing destination in the country: immense open floodplains dotted with large herds of lechwe, puku, buffalo, wildebeest and even roan antelope.

Kafue is easily accessible from both Lusaka and Zambia's 'adventure capital' – Livingstone – outside Victoria Falls where visitors can choose to simply drink in the grandeur of the spectacle or to engage in any one of a multitude of adrenalin-raising activities.

A remarkably low population in a deceptively massive country means that this is still Africa undiscovered with a timeless sense of wilderness and remoteness.

CAMPS IN ZAMBIA – KAFUE

Kafue National Park

2.24 million hectares (5.5 million acres); Zambia's largest and oldest national park and the heart of a massive conservation area of 7.3 million hectares (18.2 million acres). Here, extensive tracts of miombo woodland are interspersed with dambos (open, grassy areas) and floodplains of varying sizes. Three major water courses feed and drain the park: the Kafue, Lunga and Lufupa Rivers. Major features include the productive Busanga Plains in the north-west, and Lake Itezhi-Tezhi in the south.

Busanga Plains Concession

28 000 hectares (69 000 acres); the expansive, grassy Busanga Plains are the jewel in Kafue's crown. Ringed by miombo woodland, the plains themselves are a mosaic of grassland, muddy channels and hippo pools, palm islands and fragmented papyrus swamp. This range of habitat provides fantastic concentrations of common species such as puku, lechwe, buffalo and wildebeest, but also comparative rarities like roan, oribi, sitatunga and Lichtenstein's hartebeest.

Shumba Camp

Shumba Camp is situated on a tree island right in the middle of the superbly flat Busanga Plains. Floodplain grasses stretch to the horizon, interrupted only by isolated protrusions of fig and palm trees. From the raised decks, the view is panoramic and often filled with grazing puku and lechwe; at sunrise the vista from the dining and bar area (as well as your own tent) seems surreal as dawn fog blankets the landscape. Dinner takes place here or in the cosy boma where the staff often share elements of Zambian culture.

Highlights

Shumba means ‘lion’ – and appropriately, the camp is in the midst of various lion pride territories. Shumba’s proximity to permanent water and the mix of seasonal and permanent floodplains makes it the perfect location for large numbers of plains game: besides puku and lechwe, rare roan, Lichtenstein’s hartebeest and oribi can be found. Wild dog and cheetah are seen too.

Shaded by spectacular fig trees and with magnificent vistas over the open wildlife-rich plains.

Intimate Busanga Bush Camp is hidden on a lush tree-island of sycamore fig trees. The lounge and bar area is under canvas with an uninterrupted view out over the plains; breakfast is often served here to take in the view of the herds of lechwe and puku feeding. A little further back the dining area is shaded by a majestic tree from which an unusual lantern chandelier hangs, romantically lighting up dinner, which is served in the open air.

Highlights

Thanks to the morning mist rising off the floodplains, guests can experience incredible sunrises with the sun a spectacular pink colour, while the floodplains teem with wildlife and birds. Large herds of red lechwe and puku are a common sight, together with oribi and resident roan, while zebra and wildebeest use the fringes of the plains. Lion are the most common predator, with occasional sightings of cheetah and wild dog.

Busanga's original camp; small, intimate and perfectly positioned at its heart.

CAMPS IN ZAMBIA – VICTORIA FALLS

The River Club

10 hectares (25 acres); ideal location opposite Zimbabwe's Zambezi National Park and outside the hubbub of Livingstone. The River Club occupies one of the few raised viewpoints on the Zambezi River upstream of Victoria Falls. This and its lush grounds mean that it offers a unique perspective and sanctuary that overlooks a pod of hippo and the wilds of Zimbabwe across the river.

Victoria Falls

1 700 metres (5 600 feet) wide and 108 m (360 ft.) high; known locally as Mosi-oa-Tunya (the smoke that thunders), due to its towering plume of spray that is visible at a distance. The Falls' maximum flow rate exceeds that of Igauzu and is more than double that of Niagara.

The eastern and main areas of camp are under a shady canopy of jackalberry, knobthorn and waterberry trees, while the western side is in a more open setting: an ancient baobab tree is the focal point of panoramic Zambezi vistas. There is ample space for relaxation with meals served on the sundeck, the pool deck and dining room all overlooking the river. The pizza oven and spa round off the camp experience.

Highlights

Toka Leya's location means that there is plenty to do here, from cruising down the Zambezi to visiting Victoria Falls, exploring Livingstone town to game driving through Mosi-oa-Tunya National Park. The Park has species such as buffalo, giraffe, zebra, wildebeest, impala and white rhino, while hippo, crocodile and elephant are regularly seen in or near the Zambezi.

For the energetic, there is a gym, running track and tennis court.

Highlights

Situated just 18 km upstream from Victoria Falls, The River Club allows for in-depth and adventurous exploration of this Wonder. Livingstone, known as the "adventure capital" of Zambia, is also steeped in history. The Zambezi River is interspersed with vegetated islands, sandbanks and rocky rapids, and fringed with cool riparian forest – all a perfect sanctuary for hippo, crocodile and elephant, and prolific birdlife. WELCOME TO MALAWI

Lakeshore view (Lake Malawi)

Zebra and endless vistas (Nyika)

Drinking elephant herd (Liwonde)

Boat excursion along the tropical Shire River (Liwonde)

One of Africa's more densely populated countries, Malawi is primarily well-known for the warmth and friendliness of its people and for the extra dimension this brings to travel in Africa; it is undoubtedly one of the friendliest places to travel on the continent, with ordinary, everyday people happy to invite you into their homes and to present you with gifts of fresh fruit and other food.

Despite the high population however, there are in fact large wilderness areas, unique on the planet, in which to reconnect with nature and to observe wildlife in its natural environment. The most obvious of these is Lake Malawi – the “Lake of Stars,” as described by David Livingstone. It is Africa's third largest and second deepest lake and supports higher numbers of fish species than any other lake on Earth with more than a thousand species thought to occur here.

Another is Nyika National Park in the north-west of the country. This absolutely unique ecosystem is unlike anything else in Africa, with large herds of roan, eland and zebra roaming endless unbroken vistas of rolling Afro-alpine grassland, a striking contrast to the more typical African wooded savannah of Liwonde National Park in the south – home to the country's largest elephant, hippo and sable antelope population.

Lake Malawi National Park

9 400 hectares (23 000 acres); gazetted as the world's first freshwater national park in 1980. Lake Malawi holds a greater array of freshwater fish species (over 1 000) than any other lake on Earth and more than all of Europe and North America combined. The majority are colourful cichlids or 'mbuna', more than 95% of which are found nowhere else on the planet. Approximately half of all these species occur in the national park.

Liwonde National Park

60 000 hectares (148 000 acres); the gem in Malawi's wildlife crown. Straddling the beautiful Shire River and its floodplains, this national park harbours a surprisingly abundant wildlife population – particularly elephant, hippo, sable and black rhino. Borassus palms dot the floodplains, while baobabs and mopane woodland dominate the hinterland. Nearly 300 bird species occur here, including specials such as Böhm's bee-eater, Livingstone's flycatcher, Pel's fishing-owl, Lilian's lovebird and brown-breasted barbet.

Mvuu Lodge

Mvuu Lodge overlooks a secret, tranquil lagoon just off the Shire River, with the main lounge, dining and bar area set high above the water. Its extensive wildlife library and telescope make the most of the exceptional bird and other life that moves around the river, and the pool is perfect for cooling off at siesta time.

Highlights

In this lush area, the Shire and its floodplains draw an excellent diversity of animals to feed and drink, including a dense population of hippo, crocodiles and large numbers of elephant as well as sable, Lichtenstein's hartebeest, yellow baboon and waterbuck. Non-stop birding is guaranteed here. The Rhino Tracking Experience is a unique opportunity to join the Rhino Protection Team scouts and your guide in tracking rare black rhino on foot; learn about their conservation – and end with a delicious bush breakfast or dinner. No visit is complete without meeting the friendly people of the nearby villages.

*Mvuu means

name for this Shire

There are also large numbers of impala, waterbuck, yellow baboon and the majestic sable. A 4 000-hectare sanctuary is home to further species like buffalo and Lichtenstein's hartebeest. The Rhino Tracking Experience is a unique three-hour guided walk, tracking the endangered black rhino, one of only two breeding nuclei of black rhino in Malawi. The birdlife here is prolific – probably the best year-round birding in southern Africa.

A spectacular vantage point over the Shire River – filled with hippo, elephant and non-stop birds.

MUMBO ISLAND

Intimate, beautiful Mumbo Island floats on southern Lake Malawi, a profusion of green foliage bursting out amongst large, rounded rocks and a white, snug beach on a tiny bay. The main area is hidden in the forest while the tents are perched on rocks high above the water. Mumbo Island Camp is 100% solar-powered and the dining area, bar and gazebo are all hand-built from timber, thatch and canvas. The mix creates a place of rustic charm and light footprint, a Robinson Crusoe-like experience.

More Than Just a Safari

At Wilderness Safaris, our delight is to share the wild places of Africa with our guests, while our ultimate goal is to help make a difference to Africa, its people and its wildlife. As a guest, you are helping us to do so.

There is much more that needs to be done, however, which is why, some 20 years ago, we created the Wilderness Safaris Wildlife Trust, an independent entity that supports a wide variety of wildlife management, research and education projects throughout Africa. These projects address the needs of our wildlife, seek solutions to save threatened species and provide education and training for local communities. This has made our journey more meaningful and we've reached more people and places than before.

Conservation of animals and plants is only as strong as the people who live in their vicinity. If they're not interested, protection is likely to exist only on paper. That's why Africa's future lies in her children, and why our pride and joy is our Children in the Wilderness programme, which aims to educate the youth of Africa, inspiring and helping them to appreciate and thus protect their magnificent natural heritage.

Every year, we close some of our camps for a week at a time and groups of 16 to 25 children between the ages of 10 and 14 are hosted here, given the opportunity to experience these wilderness areas and their wildlife. During camp, the curriculum covers environmental education, HIV/ AIDS and nutrition and life skills, and the importance of conservation. No less importantly, throughout the year, Eco Clubs are held at the local schools (i.e. schools situated near Wilderness Safaris areas), where we can visit the children in their own environment, providing opportunities for all learners who are interested in the environment to meet, learn, discuss and expand their knowledge of their natural heritage.

Our guests can be proud to be part of this life-changing journey.

Zimbabwe

Classic safari destination teeming with big game in Hwange and Mana Pools National Parks, as well as the majestic Victoria Falls.

Africa is vast. The so-called 'dark continent' is nearly one quarter bigger than all of North America (including Alaska, Canada, Mexico and the USA), and the entire European continent would fit into its land surface no less than three times.

It is also not as densely populated as is often believed. Population density is only 46% that of Europe and 35% that of Asia. Despite this, there are between 2 100 and 3 000 indigenous African languages and cultures, a diversity mirrored by the huge array of flora and fauna that occurs across the breadth of the continent.

This diversity of wildlife is unmatched anywhere else on the planet in terms of the range and numbers of large mammals – the megafauna. Africa plays host to more than 1 300 mammal species, while in comparison North America and Europe between them hold less than 600 species.

Vast intact savannah landscapes and ecosystems enable lion, herds of elephant, myriad plains game and even people to exist as they have done for thousands of years. The same is true of the rainforest and some of our closest relatives – chimpanzees and gorillas – as well as the deserts, off-shore islands and lakes.

The continent can be overwhelming in its multiplicity of destinations and experiences; to the left are a few of the highlights.

Exposure to traditional culture should be part of every safari (Ngamo Village, outside Hwange National Park)
